

'To injure no man,
but to bless all mankind'

BOSTON · FRIDAY
MARCH 27, 2009

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

VOL. 101, NO. 84 COPYRIGHT © 2009 THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY — All rights reserved

Why are Germans buying so many cars?

GOVERNMENT INCENTIVES AID BUYERS & DEALERS / 7

LATEST NEWS & EXTENDED COVERAGE: CSMonitor.com

ONE DOLLAR

FAREWELL, DAILY PRINT

The New Monitor

This issue of The Christian Science Monitor represents a significant moment in our 100-year history. As of today, the daily Monitor makes its transition from print to online. Follow us 24/7 at CSMonitor.com and subscribe to our new print weekly. The Monitor move, which was announced last fall, is being watched by other news organizations, many of which are weighing changes of their own.

Editor's message John Yemma explains how our new formats – Web, weekly print, e-mail – will make Monitor journalism more relevant. Opinion, 9.

Past as prologue Former writers mark 'unique' moments – from crawling on the carpet with Reagan to being shot at with Arafat. Backstory, 20.

Beyond bailouts: reforms ahead

By MARK TRUMBULL
STAFF WRITER

The push to remake the financial industry's rules of the road in hopes of softening future boom-and-bust cycles gathered momentum this week with Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner urging Congress Thursday to create new systems to monitor and control risks.

So far, Washington has acted mainly to contain the immediate damage to the economy. But any deeper fixes could also yield results quickly.

THE TREASURY SECRETARY is proposing new regulation for the financial industry.

By signaling a receptivity to increased regulation – a key European demand – the announcement might strengthen President Obama's ability to nudge

Germany and other nations on a US priority at next week's meeting of the Group of 20 leaders: expanding government spending as an economic stimulus. Federal agencies would also have new authority to intervene at large, troubled financial institutions like AIG if parts of Mr. Geithner's plan are enacted into law.

Longer term, clarifying potential reforms could lift economic confidence. See REFORM page 12

U.S. FORCES MAY NOT LEAVE KEY IRAQI CITIES

By JANE ARRAF
CORRESPONDENT

BAGHDAD – The US withdrawal from Iraq is under way. Some troops are preparing to go home and others have pulled back from outposts to bases. But the planned pull-back of all American soldiers from Iraqi cities by the end of June will probably not be fully met.

In an exclusive interview, the top US ground commander in Iraq says Iraqi officials are likely to ask for US help in the key cities of Baquba and Mosul, meaning that American troops may stay there after the deadline for redeployment to major bases. Senior military commanders say Did Al Qaeda in Iraq turn too violent? Dispute splits jihadis. Page 6.

US troops will also likely stay on in the southern city of Basra.

"In Mosul and Diyala [Province], as we do a combined or joint assessment of the situation on the ground, I have every expectation that both sides will say we need to stay with this a little bit longer until this improves," says Lt. Gen. Lloyd Austin.

NEWS.COM

While US forces are to hand over combat missions to Iraqis See IRAQ page 10

TROUBLE SPOT: US soldiers patrol Baquba, capital of Diyala Province, where fighting continues.

STEPHEN J. CARRERA/SPECIAL TO THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

WHAT MAKES A TEACHER GOOD?

This series explores efforts to attract and cultivate more excellence at the head of the class. One central issue: How are future teachers best prepared for the work ahead?

See page 13.

LAST OF THREE PARTS

PASSAGE TO INDIA?

US workers migrate overseas

By BEN ARNOLDY
STAFF WRITER

DELHI AND PUNE, INDIA – IBM announced a major round of US layoffs on Thursday, even as the company has been hiring workers in developing nations like India.

But over the past year, the company began offering US workers who are facing a job cut a novel carrot: If you apply for a new IBM position in a foreign country and are hired again at local wages, we will cover some of the transition costs like visa fees.

Few IBMers have taken the offer, and the firm has taken public relations lumps over it. But a handful of pioneering Americans at other firms have started to shop their skills on the Indian market, finding fulfillment and job security at a time of deep recession back home.

The IBM offer hints at a future where it's not just skilled Indians who might have to travel halfway around the globe for a job. It's likely that more American job seekers will have to think globally, say analysts, and the experiences of Americans who have taken jobs with companies here say it's not something to fear.

An IBM offer hints at a future where it's not just skilled Indians who travel the globe for work.

"I was making six figures when I left the States. I'm making six figures here – in rupees," laughs Jeanne Heydecker, a marketing See JOBS page 11

IN TRAINING: Danielle Silverman (l.) and Lakeyk Poston discuss a lesson at a K-8 school in Chicago.